My dear Professor Saiyidain:

I have just read your Christmas 1970 letter and I must tell you what a warm feeling it gave me to share your thoughts and activities during the past year. As I read about a year so full of human experience, I came to have a new appreciation of what "retirement" should be.

I am sad to learn of the passing of your eldest sister and other friends dear to you, but I am pleased to learn of your many other human contacts kept alive.

Cordially yours,

Cole S. Brembeck, Director
Institute for International Studies and
Associate Dean, College of Education
